AURORA VEST

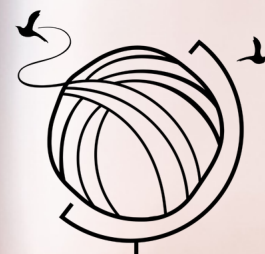

nomad stitches

Aurora means “dawn” – the start of a new day. The Aurora Vest was inspired by the changing of the seasons, what’s beyond the horizon and the desire to renew oneself. It is an incredibly versatile garment – being ideal for hot weather worn on its own; or for colder weather as an accessory to elevate an outfit. The stitch used, which is reminiscent of knitted fabric, creates a very light and airy fabric without being see-through. The straps at the sides make it highly adjustable, while the smart rounded ribbed neckline elevates it. The colorwork at the back is achieved using Intarsia Crochet and it’s a great opportunity to use mini skeins or leftover yarn from other projects. With its high-low rounded hem, this is a piece you will turn to time and time again. The pattern comes with detailed instructions, pictures, color charts for completing the colorwork section, and video tutorials to help you throughout.

This is a truly beautiful design! As I was crocheting the CESC for the first time, I kept admiring the beautiful drape of the fabric. Sandra's detailed pattern and guide on how to crochet this stitch, makes learning this stitch and crocheting this vest a breeze!

beautiful design with a fun way to wear vest! I also love the CESC, it's a nice stitch which created interesting texture! As always, Sandra's design is all about details, shaping. This time, Sandra even provide in-depth video to guide the CESC which made the crochet process so much enjoyable.

I made the front longer by 3 inches and the back longer by 5 inches. I also used a contrasting golden color for the bottom bands on the front and back of the vest.

My finished vest is wearable art! Sandra's videos and the photos included in the pattern really help to make crocheting this vest simple. Don't be put off by the intarsia -- with the help of Sandra's video and instructions it is really easy to do.

I don't typically wear vests, but I couldn't resist crocheting this one when I saw the pattern! It's quick, it's easy, and it takes very little yarn!
